THE EXPERIENCE OF POVERTY AMID PLENTY IN THE BAY AREA

A VIRTUAL CONFERENCE
Tuesday July 28, 10:30am–noon (PST)

The coronavirus pandemic and economic fall-out have exacerbated longstanding inequities in the Bay Area. Join us for a conversation on these issues through the lens of Taking Count, a newly-published report on inequality in the Bay Area by UC Berkeley and Tipping Point Community, a non-profit that fights poverty in the region.

The study reveals a stark picture of poverty and racial inequality just before the pandemic hit. Experts will discuss this research and other studies’ findings on hardships Bay Area residents face from housing to workplace protections, and the racial disparities that exist even for those with financial resources.

FEATURED SPEAKERS

Dr. Irene Bloemraad • UC Berkeley
Expert on immigrants’ civic integration and inequities in nonprofit service provision

Dr. Dani Carrillo • UCSF
Expert on low-income populations’ access to safety net programs

Sam Cobbs • Tipping Point CEO
Expert on poverty and foster-involved youth

Dr. Ryan Finnigan • UC Davis
Expert on poverty and labor market inequality

Dr. Daniel Schneider • Harvard/UC Berkeley
Expert on household economic security and the impact of work on family health and well-being

Dr. Kim Voss • UC Berkeley
Expert on work and the US labor movement

REGISTER HERE